

Patrick Farrell Biography Savage Grant Patrick Farrell is the founder and president of Savage Grant, a holding company investing in Appalachia through the energy, infrastructure, and technology industries. As part of this strategy, Mr. Farrell co-founded Mountain Point, a cloud technology consulting firm based in Charlotte, North Carolina, and CentralApp, an insourcing software development company with workers located throughout central Appalachia. Mr. Farrell also acquired and serves as the president of Service Pump and Supply, an industrial products and services company working within the mining, municipal, and oil and gas industries. Mr. Farrell is an active member of the community, focusing on bringing new economic opportunities to the Appalachian region. He is the founder and president of West Virginia Veterans Inc., a non-profit dedicated to increasing veteran employment, and a co-founder of Appalachian Connection, a non-profit supporting future leaders in Appalachia by helping ease the financial burdens of higher education. He also volunteers as a mentor for the Robert C. Byrd Institute's Ten50 Accelerator program, an initiative to support entrepreneurs in start-up business endeavors. Mr. Farrell serves as a board member for the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce, the West Virginia Economic Development Authority, St. Joseph Catholic School, and the privately-held Portable Solutions Group. He was also appointed to serve as a member of the Marshall University Board of Governors. Prior to his role in the private sector, Mr. Farrell served in the U.S. Air Force as an F- 15E Strike Eagle weapon systems operator. He is a decorated combat veteran and was awarded a Distinguished Flying Cross for Heroism. Mr. Farrell is a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy and earned his MBA from the Duke University Fuqua School of Business. He lives in Huntington, West Virginia, with his wife and sons. He spends his free time as a Boy Scouts of America volunteer and as a coach for his sons' sports teams.